OPPORTUNITY

DENVER PUBLIC LIBRARY

2014 ANNUAL REPORT
MISSION
The Denver Public Library connects people with information, ideas and experiences to provide enjoyment, enrich lives and strengthen our community.
A MESSAGE FROM OUR LEADERSHIP TEAM

Opportunities abound at the Library: the opportunity to get help applying for a job online, discover a new skill or pursue a passion.

For each person, it’s a different journey, a different dream.

We are ecstatic that we set a new record for Summer of Reading, with 42,792 kids and teens participating. We are just as pleased that 12-year-old Sloan Woodberry was like a kid at Disneyland when she first walked into the ideaLAB at Central. Here, teens and adults alike can create a website, use our 3D printer and experiment with the latest digital toys.

It was a landmark year for programming with more than 407,707 customers attending everything from storytime to a cooking demonstration. Always looking for innovative ways to serve our customers, we launched a new online service, Volume, which features streaming music from local musicians. The website is getting rave reviews.

We also got out into the community, attending farmers’ markets, festivals and fairs. Our Taking It to the Streets initiative was hugely successful as we introduced the Library to thousands of future users. We are proud of our rich history and even found time to celebrate our 125th anniversary.

We are deeply grateful to each of you for your support of the Library and the Friends Foundation, and to our volunteers – in 2014, you donated 105,009 hours of service. With the enduring support and affection of this wonderful community, we look forward to serving you for another century and beyond.

Jay Mead, Library Commission President

Shirley Amore, City Librarian

Customers delve into a world of opportunities at the Denver Public Library:

The opportunity to get help applying for a job online
The opportunity to learn a new skill
The opportunity to pursue a passion

Stories, ideas, experiences, dreams. They're all here waiting to be explored.
When Susana Martinez moved from El Salvador to Colorado in 2003, she came filled with dreams, ambitions and a desire to work hard.

The young mom spoke little English and knew nothing about libraries. She soon discovered the Hadley Branch Library in southwest Denver and the many services the branch offers. Plaza programs at the branch provide services to new immigrants and learners who need assistance with everything from improving their English to studying for the citizenship exam to learning computer skills.

“Susana and her children come to the Plaza faithfully,” says Will Chan, program coordinator of New Immigrant Initiatives for the Library. “Diana and Oscar practically grew up with the program.”

Today, Susana proudly shares that she is now a U.S. citizen and works as a certified nursing assistant. The kids are thriving. Fourteen-year-old Diana is a cheerleader and eleven-year-old Oscar and his pals love “messing around” on the computers at Hadley.

Library Program Associate Rinh Pham says that Susana is the “life of the class,” adding that Susana motivates other Spanish-speakers and is always positive and friendly.

“I am so happy we came to the Library,” Susana says. “We have all learned so much here.”

As a seven-year-old, Sam Blumenthal’s favorite thing in the world was to run his lemonade stand.

His parents bought what he needed, but Sam organized the operation, schmoozed passersby, counted his earnings, and “loved every minute.”

Twenty years later, it’s little surprise that Sam owns his own business. Shortly after he graduated with a degree in psychology from CU, the Colorado native came up with the idea to make healthy, gourmet granola. “It’s my Mom’s recipe,” he says. “When I was a kid, I used to beg her to make orange coconut granola.”

But Sam knew it would take more than a great recipe to start his own business and admits he didn’t know where to begin.

The wanna-be entrepreneur had the good fortune to meet Denver Public Library business outreach specialist Dixie Malone when he attended a presentation she gave about “identifying your best customer.”

After meeting with Dixie one-on-one at Denver Central Library, Sam applied to attend Rocky Mountain Micro Finance Institute’s intensive eight-week boot camp.

Today, Sam rattles off terms like cost-analysis faster that you can say gluten-free.

His company, Lagrano, a word made from rearranging the letters in granola, partners with schools for fundraisers. The hand-crafted maple cinnamon and coconut orange granola are big hits.

The young philanthropist loves being his own boss, but what does he enjoy most about his job? “I am proud of creating a healthy product. And, I get to give back,” he says with a grin.
The Denver Public Library Friends Foundation enriches our community by building support and raising money to enhance the Library's programs and services.

When 12-year-old Sloan Woodberry walks into the Central Library’s ideaLAB, her face literally lights up as she takes it all in.

Three teenage boys are kicked back on a sofa, laughing and playing Super Smash Brothers, while another teen focuses intently on her Photoshop project. A couple of tweens work on their rap video in the sound-proof music studio. The state-of-the-art digital media center boasts GarageBand, Dreamweaver, Cakewalk Sonar X1 and Gamemaker Studio.

It’s enough to make any tech-loving teen swoon.

Sloan came to the ideaLAB after her mom, Kathleen Woodberry, contacted DPL with a somewhat unusual request: Could the Library use its 3D printer to create a custom-designed case for her daughter’s insulin monitor? The ideaLAB team printed the special cover, and the rest, as they say, is history.

Today, Sloan hangs out at the ideaLAB as much as possible. And, she is thrilled with the case which helps protect the device.

The 8th grader – who is a huge fan of the Library – says that while her condition can be annoying, she has adjusted. Wearing the monitor in its “rad” new case is just part of her routine.
